Mrs. Lydia Loudon, who resides near Gavers, has attended every one of the 61 county fairs held in Lebanon, this week's show included.

The short apple crop means a scanty supply, but think of the bumper peach crop and the brandy, far superior to older, that can be made.

Sportmen who enjoy 'coon hunting will have little trouble finding game this fall, the past season having been favorable for increasing the 'coon family.

Grover White of Mineral Ridge died last Saturday after an operation for appendicitis. He leaves a young wife, mother and several brothers and sisters.

Prof. F. J. Roller, who has just entered on his 21st year as superintendent of Niles public schools, announced Tuesday that he will complete his work in the Niles schools at the close of the year next June.

A large barn belonging to Austin Williams near Rogers was burned by an incendiary early Monday morning. The loss is $2,000 with small insurance. The blaze will be investigated by the state fire marshal.

Marshall Cooley, leading citizen of Greene township, Trumbull county, 75 years old, attended the District church Sunday morning and died at 11 o'clock in the evening although apparently in good health when he retired.

The fact that a flock of sheep escaped from their enclosure near West Anselstown the other day and wandered on to the Erie's right-of-way probably gave rise to the story that the company had rented its track for a pasture field.

Dr. B. F. Gibbons died Sunday in Warren township, where he resided for 21 years, aged nearly 77 years. He was born in Goshen township, this county, and for a quarter of a century practiced his profession in Youngstown before removing to Warren.

J. J. O'Rourke of Warren has been appointed deputy inspector of workshops and factories in this district by chief inspector J. P. Kern. Several Youngstown democrats aspired to the place but they did not hold poles long enough to reach the plume.

Secretary Manchester will be at his office on the fair grounds Saturday to receive entries for the fair next week, and Monday, too. People who desire to avoid the rush incident to the opening day of the fair should make their entries on the days indicated.

The twenty-second annual convention of Mahoning County W. C. T. U. will be held at the East Goshen Friends' church, Goshen township, Thursday and Friday. The Friday evening address will be given by the president of the Ohio W. C. T. U., Miss Francis H. Esiga.

E. E. Gregg, former publisher of the Hubbard Enterprise, for some time head of a leading real estate company in Warren, has accepted the position of general sales agent for the McGraw Rubber Co., with headquarters in Pittsburgh. The plant of the McGraw company is in East Palestine.

Many quail escaped hunters last fall and wintered well, but it is said that few young birds have been seen during the summer. Pairs of quail could be seen on nearly every farm and this naturally gave the impression that young birds for the coming hunting season would be abundant.

The publisher very much regrets that last week's ending out the mail from this office several packages for Youngstown were overlooked, causing an annoying delay of 24 hours. Greater care will be exercised in the future to prevent subscribers being disappointed in receiving their paper at the usual time.

On account of the Canfield fair next week two special trains will be run by the Erie from Youngstown on Wednesday morning, the first leaving at 8 o'clock and the second at 8:30. One train will be run Thursday, leaving Youngstown at 8 a. m. These trains are sure to bring large crowds if weather conditions are favorable.

This year the nut crop promises to be abundant. Nearly every tree is bending with green nuts, hickory, chestnut, walnut and butternut. If hard frosts do not come too soon the trees will soon have hundreds of bushels of nuts ready for gathering. The chestnut crop which was ruined one year by the early snow and the next by the dry weather, is unusually large.

D. M. Clewell has passed over the control of his dry goods store in Ravensburg to W. H. Marsh, who was long in the employ of Mr. Clewell, and the new firm will be known as the Clewell & Marsh Co. Mr. Clewell is a native of Canfield and has many friends in this county. By dint of hard work and close application to business he established the best known and most popular dry goods store in Portage county. Failing health made it necessary for him to slow down somewhat and he will take life easier in the future.

Henry Booth, aged 89 years, died Sunday night in the Columbus county infirmary. Booth was born near Youngstown and inherited valuable coal lands from his father. He moved to Columbus county in 1867 and lost much of his fortune seeking to develop coal lands. He then tried stock keeping and failed. Being without money or relatives, he was given a home by Mrs. J. R. Perceval, who was conducting a hotel in Leesona, but when she disposed of her business the old man had no alternative but to go to the infirmary.

W. W. Griffey died recently in the Printers' Home at Colorado Springs, Col. The deceased came to Youngstown from Flint, Mich., about a quarter of a century ago and was associated with the late Thump Burton in the publication of the old Saturday Night. He was an excellent printer and possessed an unusually brilliant mind. For years he was the Dispatch correspondent in Youngstown, writing principally on political matters under the pseudonym 'Youngstown Yawn.' He published a labor paper in Youngstown until about five years ago when he came to the Dispatch and worked in the mechanical department for a short time. But his health was shattered and his family being scattered he went to the infirmary where he remained until a year ago when he went to the home in Colorado Springs. Poor 'Griff'! Peace to his ashes; rest to his soul.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Correspondents and advertisers will confer a favor by sending copy early next week—Monday if possible. On account of the fair, which the Dispatch force must attend, very little correspondence can be placed in type after Tuesday night.

Postmaster General Hitchcock has directed postmasters throughout the country not to accept for mailing parcels not wrapped properly. Complaints have been received by the postoffice department from foreign governments that "parcels" contained in the mails from the United States often are received in a damaged condition, because originally they were not wrapped securely. The postal regulations provide that "parcels not properly wrapped must not be accepted for mailing."

What a Dollar Dog Can Do. A man in a nearby city bought for his wife and child a year ago a dog, for which he paid a dollar. It was obviously nothing wonderful in the canine way—merely a mongrel, with the bulldog strain predominant. The owner was a man in humble circumstances, and the dog, in his modest dwelling, was the principal asset, aside from a few sticks of furniture.

The other night "Tom" was tied to a leg of the kitchen sink as usual, and the family went to bed. They were awakened by the dog at midnight scratching at his master's door. When his master came out to see what was the matter the dog, with a remnant of chewed rope hanging from his collar, whined and ran to the head of the stairway. The house was on fire, and shortly after women and child and man and dog made their escape their poor dwelling was a mass of glowing embers.

The owner of the dog has been urged to part with him for a large cash consideration, but though he is penniless, he will not part with the four-footed savior of his family; neither has the dog at any time had thoughts of leaving them for luxurious kennels.

Hens That Think. If the average man were asked if hens had any memory, he would say "No," but he would be wrong according to the experiments of two German scientists. The plan they adopted was to put 20 grains of rice on a piece of cardboard, and between them to place ten grains of loose corn. At first the hens, of course, pecked at both rice and corn, but very soon they learned to leave the rice alone, thus very clearly showing that they remembered that the rice was stuck down.

A very remarkable point about the experiment was that the longer the time between the trials the better was the hens' memory. When the experiments were made consecutively it took them six times to learn that the rice was not worth touching; but when the experiments were made at intervals of an hour they learned the lesson at the third try, thus showing not only that they had memories, but that they thought the matter over in the intervals.

A Lobster That Sought Coin. Senator Scott of West Virginia, who has a keen sense of the ludicrous, tells this one on a constituent residing in one of the backwoods counties: "An old fellow who had been a member of the house of delegates came up to shake hands with me one day in Wheeling. In the course of our talk I asked him if he were going to run for the legislature that fall. He shook his head emphatically. 'No, sirree; I'm not a-gwine to run fur office emmy mo'. There ain't a dollar to be made out of gwine to the legislature. What I'm er gwine to do is to pack my trunk and go down to Charleston and git in that lobster game goin' on down thar when the legislature meets. Thar's whar the coin is."

The senator was of the opinion that his candid friend meant "lobbyist" when he said "lobster," but that doubtless the latter word suited him much better personally.

Animals Cannot Reason. Animals do not reason. If any one truth has come out of all the critical study of the animal mind that has been going on since this century came in, this is it. Animals do not reason; they never have reasoned; they never by any possibility can reason. The wisest of them do, indeed, get into the borderland that separates reasoning from other mental processes; but no living creature, except man, ever gets unequivocally across the line.—E. T. Brewster, in McClure's.

Appeal to Patriotism. O, my brothers, love your country! Our country is our home, the house that God has given us, placing therein a numerous family that loves us, and whom we love. In laboring for our own country on the right principle, we labor for humanity.—Maximil.

Deafness Can't Be Cured. By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

MOST RENOWNED OF SNAKES

Versatile Monster, Which Was Known as the God Aesculapius, According to Lucian.

No snake that ever lived won greater fame for the time than Alexander's. Lucian tells the story, George Harvey says in the North American Review. Apollonius, a master of the magic arts, had many disciples, among whom was a practicing physician who lived in Abonotichus, a small town on the shore of the Black sea. There Alexander was born of humble parentage and imbibed from the old doctor all that he had learned from Apollonius of medicine and magic. Soon he fell in with one Cocconas, a shrewd tipster for the races and somewhat of a juggler. The two rogues joined forces and meandered about telling fortunes. Arriving at Pella, they found a great number of huge, harmless snakes, which lived in the houses, played and slept with the children and destroyed poisonous rats. Alexander promptly purchased one of the largest, a veritable monster, so tame that it would coil about his body and remain in any desired position. Then he made a human face for it out of linen, painted it ingeniously, and shaped it so that the mouth would open and shut by an arrangement of horsehair, letting the forked tongue shoot in and out at the will of the master. Having no further use for Cocconas, he either administered poison to him or let him die from some infection and returned with his snake to his native town. There he declared himself a prophet and announced that the god Aesculapius was about to appear. The people were credulous, excitable and eager for a new divinity.

When the great day arrived Alexander pretended to discover in a puddle of water a goose egg which he had placed there after removing the contents, substituting a small embryo snake just born and carefully sealing the shell with wax. When the multitude had gathered he broke the shell and produced the tiny creature, which in a few moments grew to be the monster from Pella by the simple process of substitution. Thereafter the big snake, believed to be Aesculapius, led a busy life. He gave oracles, told fortunes in wine, and even spoke freely with the aid of the prophet's ventriloquial powers. Alexander grew rich and powerful, kept a small army of retainers and spies, wielded no little influence over the government even at Rome and died at a ripe old age in the fullness of his renown. What became of the snake nobody knows. Probably at the last the prophet dispatched the faithful creature to prevent the discovery of his deception after his death.

NOT THE GENERAL'S COW

Amusing Complication That Followed Soldier's Strict Obedience of Orders Given Him.

The first and the last duty of a common soldier is to obey orders. Nor is he allowed to put upon his orders a construction that might suit cases not anticipated. This, however, sometimes leads to amusing results, as in an instance told by L. A. Tollemant in his recent book, "Old and Odd Memories."

"The scene of one of my father's anecdotes was laid in a southern seaport town, where long ago a general and an admiral were neighbors. The general's house was fronted by a grass-plot, on which he claimed the right to pasture a cow.

"One day his wife complained that the supply of milk was falling off. The sentinel accounted for the deficiency by saying that the grass had lately been much trodden down by the public.

"The martial despot immediately gave orders that no animal, human or other, except the cow, should be allowed on the grass-plot; and he added—men were not particular in those days—that if this rule were infringed the sentinel should be flogged.

"Soon afterward the admiral's wife, having a pressing engagement, took a short cut over the grass in disregard of the sentinel's repeated order to halt.

"Sir," said the offended lady, "don't you know who I am?"

"All I know is that you're not the general's cow,"—Youth's Companion.

Dear Old Mother Eve. A chocolate dandy and his "yaller" girl were walking along together.

"Ise skeered mos' to def, Rastus."

"What am yo' skeered of, woman?"

"Ise skeered yo'se gwine to kiss me."

"How kin I kiss yo' when Ise got a bucket on the bald, a wash pot in one han' an' a turkey gobbler in de udder?"

"Oh, well, yo' fool, I wuz thinkin' yo' could set de bucket oh watah on de groun', put de turkey down an' turn de wash pot ovah him, den set me on de wash pot, frow yo' ahms around me an' des hep yo'self."—Everybody's.

Partition of Poland. The partition of Poland is generally understood to have originated with Frederick the Great of Prussia, and he and Catherine of Russia and Maria Theresa of Austria-Hungary entered into it. The Poles were so weakened that they could make no effective resistance, so the royal robbers each seized certain provinces in 1772. In 1793 another partition was made by Russia and Prussia only, and in 1795 Poland was destroyed altogether as an independent nation, and its remaining territory was divided among its three neighbors.

Good Meals. At the Methodist Dining Hall during the Canfield fair. Reasonable prices. Breakfast 25c, dinner 35c, supper 30c. Special rate to regular boarders.

Don't fail to call and see J. W. Johnston's exhibit of harness, robes, blankets, halters, straps, whips, etc., in Mechanic's hall at the fair next week.

Warning. Do not be persuaded into taking anything but Foley's Honey and Tar for chronic coughs, bronchitis, hay fever, asthma, and lung trouble, as it stops the cough and heals the lungs. F. A. Morris, Canfield.

A Good Hair-Food

Ayer's Hair Vigor, new improved formula, is a genuine hair-food. It feeds, nourishes, builds up, strengthens, invigorates. The hair grows more rapidly, keeps soft and smooth, and all dandruff disappears. Aid nature a little. Give your hair a good hair-food.

Does not change the color of the hair.

Formula with each bottle. Show it to your doctor. Ask him about it, then do as he says.

You need not hesitate about using this new Hair Vigor from any fear of its changing the color of your hair. The new Ayer's Hair Vigor prevents premature graying, but does not change the color of the hair even to the slightest degree.

Made by the Dr. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Bad Backache

Such agonies as some women suffer, every month, from backache!

Is it necessary? No. It can be prevented and relieved, when caused by female trouble, by taking a medicine with specific, curative action, on the female organs and functions, which acts by relieving the congestion, stopping the pain and building the organs and functions up to a proper state of health. Try.

WINE OF CARDUI

WOMAN'S RELIEF

"I suffered for 15 years," writes Mrs. Malinda A. Akers, of Basham, Va., "with various female troubles. I had such a backache that it drew me over, so I could not stand straight. The doctors could not help me, so I took Cardui, and now I feel like a new woman."

Yes, Indeed

There is a difference. The surest proof that my eye examination is the most satisfactory is that my business is constantly increasing—of course, the other fellows have to live and I don't want all the business. I prefer people who appreciate the value of their eyes and who are only satisfied with the best, especially when the cost is less than for poor work.

Remember the true value of glasses is not in the material from which they are made; it is in the skill and ability of the man who prescribes them.
